ON LEADERSHIP ....

Jean Larson, Milwaukee cousin and executive vice-president of a film subsidiary of the Milwaukee Journal, is now president of Pilot International, a women's equivalent to men's Rotary or Kiwanis.

Here is what Jean told 2,000 delegates of Pilot International from eight nations during a pre-installation speech at the New Orleans Fairmont Hotel.

I quote the New Orleans State-Item of Tuesday, July 19:

"Our organization is a service organization. We are interested in our communities. We are international in scope and we first like to do for others," says Jean Larson, president-elect of Pilot International.

"Over 2,000 delegates from 570 Pilot International clubs are meeting at the Fairmont Hotel for the group's 56th annual convention. The convention ends Thursday (July 21).

"Miss Larson reaffirmed the ideals and principles of the club. She said she hopes to dispell beliefs that Pilot International is just another woman's club. "Our membership is women. But we're an organization that does things," she said.

"Pilot International works with the handicapped and aged. It also sponsors scholarships for students to study in the United States, clubs for high school and college women, and is affiliated with CARE, Inc. and Project HOPE.

"Miss Larson moderated a business session in which delegates heard suggestions on improving their community Pilot International Projects.

"Although the number of blacks in the club is small, Miss Larson thinks there will be more black members in the future.

"Members of Pilot International come from a variety of professions, said the executive of a national film library.

"Miss Larson will take over the 20,000 member organization in formal ceremonies Thursday (July 21)."

Jean succeeded Betty Duvall King, outgoing president from New Albany, Miss.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Myles Glenn, brother-in-law in Kalamazoo, Mich., who was named one of the Upjohn Company's first distinguished scientists, is recovering from a second series of heart attacks in the past decade. He is a bio-chemist and international lecturer in fields related to arthritis, problems of aging and basic research in pharmaceuticals.

NOW-NOW-NOW

For starters, they are two reasons why FML runs. And I think they are good reasons.

Milam-Areans Construction Site Busy

Construction continues on schedule at the site of Alcoa's Rockdale Works where a new 545-megawatt power unit is being constructed adjacent to the current 3-unit 325-megawatt power plant. Six contractors are on the site with about 140 employees at present. Brown & Root is general contractor for the new power plant for Alcoa and Texas Power & Light Co. Butler Construction Co. is contractor for a new lignite hopper.

County Judge Disappointed

Robertson County Judge Wesley Peyton was a disappointed man last week. In spite of numerous calls and complaints from county citizens through the year no one showed up to register those opinions at the revenue sharing public hearing Monday night. "People are not interested," he said, "they just want to raise the devil. It is kind of shocking that the people are not concerned."

More School Funds Needed

The Thorndale school district will have to raise $8,400 more next year under the new school finance bill, but Supt. B.C. Sims predicts that the funds will come out of the budget -- not out of a tax increase. He added that the news isn't so grim because the amount of money Thorndale taxpayers must raise has decreased over the past two years.

Ambulance Volunteers Are Skilled, Dedicated

"The thing we fear most is a call to a wreck, because we don't know what we'll find when we get there." So spoke Kevin Harmon, president of the Cameron Volunteer Ambulance Service, which is into its eleventh month of operation.

Volunteers, however, have so far handled any situation that has come up, bolstered by good training and dedication to the job. They are a loyal crew, and are ready to back up whichever team is on call with help if it is needed.

At a roll call, 37 volunteers would answer, and most of these signed up at the start of the program in October, 1976. Only a few dropped out when they found they could not work in the service with their jobs.

All are working people, Harmon said, and they leave their jobs when a call comes during the day, and their homes for night calls. "It takes a special bunch of people to do that," Harmon said.

All are trained, with most members holding an ECA (Emergency Care Attendant) card earned by attending 32 hours of special training. Three qualify as ECA instructors and four members have earned EMT (Emergency Medical Technician) status by training for 120 hours.

Harmon said this training puts the service above the state requirements, which call for only a Red Cross card for volunteer ambulance attendants.

Harmon said shortage of numbers (the system was set up for 60) means that each volunteer works three or four 12-hour shifts a week. Three volunteers are on call for each shift, and are paged when a call comes in to the police department.

In the first 10 months of service, 375 calls came in, with 122 emergency calls and 64 emergency transfers from local hospitals to Temple, 174 home-to-hospital calls and 47 out-of-city calls.

Harmon praised the cooperation of both police and fire departments, noting that the fire department rescue unit is available for emergencies when three ambulances are needed. So far this has happened only one time, he added.

Volunteers meet regularly each month for training, practicing what they have learned along with new techniques, viewing films and practicing cardiopulmonary resuscitation. There are also demonstrations on staged accidents.

The Cameron service answers calls for the whole northern part of the county, and cooperates with Rockdale and Rosebud in giving help when needed in those areas. Harmon said the service has a good relationship with area hospitals which have helped it a lot.

He praised businessmen who have donated time and care for the ambulances in maintaining them and keeping them clean. "But if it hadn't been for Green Funeral Home and Marek-Burns-Laywell Funeral Home donating the ambulances, the expense of setting up a service would have been something else," Harmon said.

One ambulance is 6 years old with 65,000 miles and the other is 3 years old with 34,000 miles. Harmon said they would like to have new ambulances with higher tops to handle IV drips, "but they are very expensive."

Speaking of the early days Harmon said at first everyone was uneasy, not knowing what to expect, "but we haven't lost anybody -- all handle calls with superior skill." He added that every call is unique, and volunteers have to handle each situation differently.

In at least one instance Harmon believes the volunteers probably saved a traffic accident victim's life. When the ambulance arrived, the victim's heart had stopped beating. It was started again by one of the volunteers and the man is alive today.

Harmon also noted that with volunteers scattered around the city, they are qualified to handle other emergencies that may come up. He said there was one emergency in a church recently, and four ECAs happened to be there and handled it.

Harmon added that with the paging system, volunteers not on call can go to the scene ahead of the ambulance crew, size up the situation, then can help the crew when it gets there.

He firmly believes that without the enthusiasm and dedication of the volunteers, the service would have faltered and probably failed, as similar efforts have in other small cities.

First For City

Work Starts On Buckholts Sewer

Work on Buckholts' first sewer system started last week and construction contract calls for completion by March 28. However, the contractor said the job could be completed in six months, barring bad weather.

Some 24,000 feet of eight-inch sewer line will be installed to replace septic tanks used by the town's 161 homes and 15 businesses.

The construction crew plans to lay the lines in north Buckholts, then bore under Highway 36 and the Santa Fe Railroad, sending lines into the southern part of town.

Construction of the sewage plant in north Buckholts then bore under Highway 36 and the Santa Fe Railroad, sending lines into the southern part of town.

Construction of the sewage plant in north Buckholts is also starting this week.

Using a laser beam survey instrument, the plumbing crew will map out a sewer line layout. At each home and business, the crew will run a four-inch pipe from the main line to the property line for hookup.

Soon there will be two six-man crews working on the project, working 10 hours a day, five days a week or six days if the weather stays good.

Buckholts received a $351,000 loan and a $99,000 grant from the Farmers Home Administration to finance construction of the town's sewer system.

Zeigler Named Head Engineer For District 17

Carol D. Zeigler has been named District Engineer for District 17 of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation to succeed Joe G. Hanover who is retiring after 37 years of service.

He will have responsibility for all construction and maintenance in a ten-county area with 2840 miles of federal and state highways. The Bryan district includes the counties of Brazos, Burleson, Freestone, Grimes, Leon, Madison, Milam, Robertson, Walker and Washington.

Zeigler has worked in the Bryan District since 1953. He began work for the district in Hearne and in 1966 was transferred to Bryan as district engineer and has served as assistant district engineer since 1972.

A native of Gatesville, Zeigler has served in state and civic organizations and is currently a state director of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

Meeting Set For Beginning Band Students

An instrument drive will be held August 9 at the high school band hall between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. for students interested in beginning band.

Parents and students are asked to come by and see the display of instruments. Band directors Jerry Bartley and Gary Beach will be on hand to discuss instruments and a rental plan. Prospective students are urged not to purchase a new or used instrument without approval of the directors.

Beginning band will start August 22 at the high school band hall. Times for the rehearsals will be available at the August 9 meeting. Those unable to come to the meeting are asked to call the band hall at 697-3371; Bartley at 697-6874; or Beach at 697-3347.

Fire Destroys Pickup

Volunteer firemen were called out at 5:45 p.m. Wednesday to the Paul Nabours place on Salem Road, where a pickup was destroyed by fire. Cause of the fire was unknown.

Airline Regulation Eyed

President Carter wants to reduce regulation of the airline industry. At a recent White House briefing on deregulation, he said: "There is a tremendous potential market among Americans for airline service use that hasn't yet been tapped. I believe that more competition, lower rates, higher use of airplanes, more entry into new markets, and better protection for small communities all tie together into a very worthwhile pursuit."

Airline reform legislation supported by President Carter will be ready for Congressional vote soon.

Q: What will the Administration-backed airline reform legislation do?

A: Legislation that President Carter supports to ease regulation of the airline industry will:

a) open the industry to more carriers, and give established firms access to more routes.

The Civil Aeronautics Board now restricts entry by new firms in many ways. For example, it tends to prohibit any airline from entering a route if it would divert revenue from another airline already operating on that route. New airlines must also show that their entry is "required" by the public interest.

The result is that since 1950 the CAB has received applications from 80 firms wishing to offer air service, and has approved none. This would change under the new bill.

It would allow any firm that is "fit, willing and able" and whose entry cannot be shown to be inconsistent with the public interest, to enter the industry and compete with already established airlines.

b) allow air fare flexibility.

Using present rates as the standard, airlines could lower their fares by as much as 35% or raise them from 5 to 10%, without CAB approval. Currently the CAB sets all fares, and allows no reductions or increases without lengthy hearings.

c) require the CAB to review route applications by new firms within 10 months of their submission, which is much more quickly than under the present set-up.

d) guarantee that no community that now has airline service would lose service for the next 10 years.

e) make it harder for airlines to get approval for agreements among themselves. For example, the CAB approved an agreement among some airlines to limit the number of flights is specific markets. Under this bill such agreements could not be approved unless they were shown to be explicitly in the public interest.

Q: Will less price regulation result in higher air fares?

A: CAB regulations are based primarily on protecting the airlines from each other and from potential new firms, while benefits to the consumer are secondary. Because of prohibited fare competition, firms compete by offering more services and more flights. This results in frills that many people would prefer not have it if meant cheaper rates.

The fact that the CAB is less efficient at keeping air fares down than competition is, is evidenced by a study of interstate airlines not regulated by the CAB, Southwest Airlines in Texas. Southwest show consistently lower fares, of up to 50% lower, than those set by the CAB for the same routes.

Its success depends not on having its fares protected, but in being able to charge competitive fares, including discounts for less traveled flights, which airlines regulated by the CAB generally cannot do.

Charter flights, also unregulated, also show consistently lower fares than those set by the CAB.

It is true that Administration plans would allow airlines to raise their fares 5 to 10% above present rates without hearings. Such increases will not be allowed on routes served by only one carrier, however.

The new possibility of competition also will prevent excess increases in any case, and result in lower fares on many routes.

Q: What will happen to small communities where airlines fly without profit—won't these be abandoned?

A: One of the most widely held beliefs about the CAB is that it protects airlines' fares and routes in return for service to areas that are not profitable. This is not true.

The CAB has very limited authority to force airlines to service unprofitable routes. Several years ago, the Air Transport Association listed 373 routes as "unprofitable." Of these, only two required CAB approval to be discontinued.

The rest were being flown at the airlines' own option, often for repositioning aircraft, or other reasons. The routes were in fact marginally profitable, and the airlines did not want to drop them.

Q: Will job losses result as the airlines become more competitive?

A: The Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers predicts that airline employment most likely will increase as the industry expands, both from increased demand and from new firms entering. CAB Chairman Arthur Kahn, who favors the legislation, agrees that employment probably will increase.

Q: Will safety measures be affected?

A: While the airlines will be less regulated in other areas, Federal Aviation administration safety requirements will not change. An analysis of the airlines' own safety measures by the CAB shows that these are also not connected to the degree of economic regulation.

Q: Regulation prevents large companies from undercutting competitors to drive them out of business, then raising their prices to monopoly levels. How will this be avoided when the airlines are allowed price competition?

A: This reform legislation would continue the CAB's authority to prohibit predatory pricing practices. Additional competition in the industry will also prevent unfair prices.

CAB regulation, not the presence of large firms, prevents firms from entering the industry today, which allows established firms to charge higher fares. World Airways, for example, has sought to offer an $89 coast to coast trip for 10 years, but has been refused by the CAB.

Paint, Carpet, Tile...

One of the least attractive areas in the CISD system is getting a thorough remodeling.

That is the cafeteria of Ada Henderson School at Yoe Campus. The hallways, classrooms, and lockers of the school have been painted.

It can be said that things are getting a touch of color and renewal in the cafeteria, which is only the second of two on the Yoe Campus.

It is a start and it is a good one. But it remains substantially cosmetic, understandable at a time when schools are having so many problems with finance, inflation beyond the usual modern school dilemmas.

It is not criticism of the system or of the administration. It remains a fact that Cameron schools have been largely given to Cameron and that somehow the area, now a third of Milam County, only in recent years understood how gifts have softened interest in so basic a slice of the community.

We are glad the work is being done, and it is a vast improvement. We wish only some new walls and floors in some new buildings were getting the paint, carpet and tile treatment.

What more can we say?

Community Orientation...

A recent report on Cameron Volunteer Ambulance Service showed another success story for civic leadership in Milam's county seat.

Only a few have dropped out from the 37-member group during the first 10 months of service, which combined the vehicles of both Cameron funeral homes and these trained volunteers who did the following:

The volunteer ambulance service members made 375 calls, including: 122 emergencies, 64 emergency transfers local to Temple; 174 home to hospital; and 47 out of city.

Volunteers drove two ambulances a total of 8,728 miles accruing billings of $14,116.50 and collections of $9,982.85.

The figures speak for themselves, substantiating the leadership qualities and Milam community orientation of these people.

What more can we say?

"Low Down"
FROM THE
Congressional Record
By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

REP. PHILLIP M. CRANE (Ill.) "..... What I propose here is a simple, straightforward alternative to this nightmare: Tax limitation by constitutional amendment on both the national and State levels.

"Putting a constitutional lid on the taxing and spending power of the government is an idea whose time has come. Under the tax limitation concept, taxes and spending are held to a defined percentage of the total income of the people, thereby preventing a State legislature or the Congress from increasing taxes faster than increases in personal income: except in emergencies.

In 1950, government at all levels was taking 26 percent of the national income for taxes. Today, it is more than 40 percent and is projected to go beyond 50 percent by the 1980s.

"The only 'tax reform' that will put a halt to the governmental usurpation of hard-earned dollars is the method I am advocating: Constitutional tax limitation. Without such a plan, American freedoms will be lost as the majority of each individual's means is spent according to the governments dictates..."

SENATOR BARRY GOLDWATER (Ariz.) "..... One of the primary requirements for preserving freedom in this country has to be putting a stop to deficit spending by the Federal Government..."

"We might remember that the Constitution is not embedded in stone, totally free of reasonable change. The Founding Fathers knew that change would be necessary..."

"I am pleased to announce that Arizona became the 20th State on May 19, when it adopted a concurrent memorial asking that Congress call a Constitutional Convention to prepare and submit a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Does your State plan to ask Congress for a Constitutional Convention to propose an amendment to the Constitution to limit government spending?

Without this amendment, the promise to balance the Federal budget, will very likely become just another "campaign promise".

Chili Cookers Can Now Walk Proudly In Light

At last, clandestine chili cookers around Texas can walk proudly into the light of the day.

Chili is no longer a dish cooked by a few firebreathing, fun-loving weirdos. It has been placed in its well-deserved place of honor by the recent State legislature which proclaimed it the official State dish.

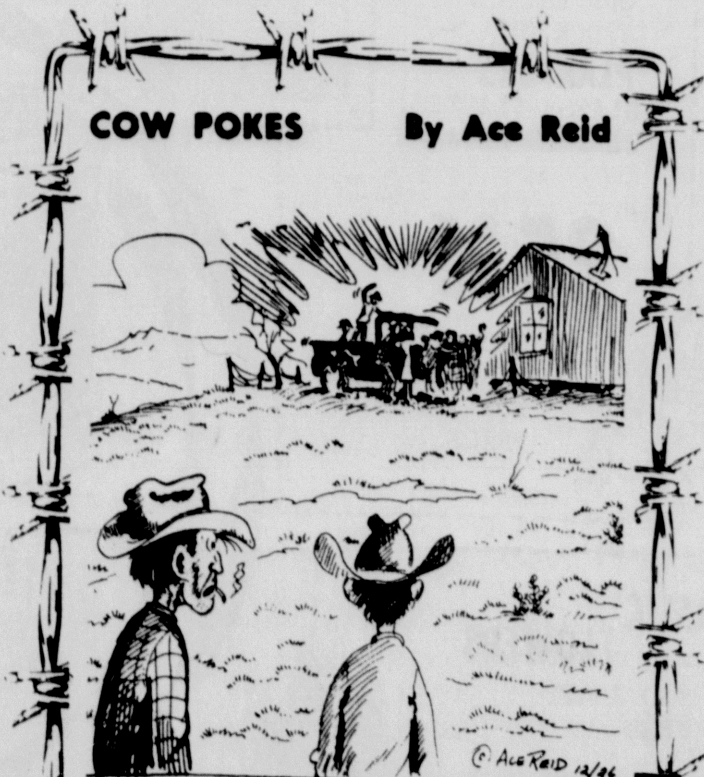

The first "legal" test of chili's new legitimacy will take place at the 8th annual Republic of Texas Chiliad September 15-18. On hand at this year's cook-off will be perennial crowd-pleasers Yellow Dog and John Raven, plus a foreigner from Newport, Kentucky, named Robert J. Bischoff, and many others.

Also providing entertainment at this year's Chiliad will be the Original Bob Will's Texas Playboys, Mickey Gilley, "Fiddlin" Frenchie Burke and the Latin Breed.

Veterans Urged To Enroll Early For Fall Classes

Veterans planning to enroll in college-credit classes at McLennan Community College this fall need to contact the Veterans Affairs Office at MCC now, said Walter Murchison, coordinator of MCC veterans affairs.

"It's important to take care of the paper work early," Murchison said. "Veterans need to contact our office four to six weeks prior to the beginning of the semester."

The fall semester at MCC will begin August 29 with registration August 15-23. Those students eligible for veterans benefits include not only veterans, but also dependents of 100 percent service-connected disabled veterans.

Students receiving benefits can attend MCC either on a full or part-time, day or evening school basis. Prospective veteran students must bring their DD Form 214 to the MCC Veterans Office.

MCC does not participate in the advanced pay program. "The student will receive pay at the end of the first month of school. Pay depends on the number of dependents and the number of semester hours the student is enrolled", said Murchison.

Texas veterans whose delimiting dares have passed can attend MCC under the Hazelwood Act which pays tuition and fees. This state-supported fund is open to these veterans who were Texas residents when they entered the service.

Further information concerning these benefits is available by calling the MCC Veterans Affairs Office in the Student center at 756-6551, ext. 404.

Preregistration Starts At Blinn

Preregistration for fall semester classes is currently underway at Blinn College.

Students may preregister through August 12 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from August 15 to 23 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

The regular registration period for fall classes will be from August 24 through 29.

The first day of fall classes is scheduled for Tuesday, August 30.

TJC Starts Registration

Aug. 12 is the deadline for preregistration for evening division classes for the fall semester at Temple Junior College.

TP&W Offers Film On Drowning

A cinematographer sat on a lifeguard tower at Orchard Beach in New York City during the summer of 1970 and filmed actual near-drownings and rescues.

This footage, which dramatically shows what happens when a person is drowning, has been incorporated into a film entitled "Drowning: Facts and Myths," available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The film discusses where and how people drown -- it takes less than 60 seconds to drown--and some frightening facts about the effects of alcohol and drugs on swimmers.

National statistics and rules for safe swimming and boating also are included in the film.

For information about the film, "Drowning: Facts and Myths", and bookings contact film library, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744 or call 512-475-4895.

noon in the First Baptist Church in Milano with the Rev. Joe Franklin and the Rev. Don Duval officiating. Burial was in Milano Cemetery.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. R.L. Myrick of Milano and two nieces.

Marek-Burns-Laywell Funeral Home of Cameron was in charge.

To people who wonder whether life is more than the daily routine of work, the Bible advises that it should involve more than the struggle for survival. It should involve the joy of living.

Jesus scorned a life of work without joy when He asked, "Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing?" (Matthew 6:25 RSV).

Even though there are deficiencies in some nursing homes, we should not forget how far we've come in the past few years, the Director of the Texas Department of Health's Nursing and Convalescent Homes Division, Howard C. Allen, asserts.

Nursing homes recently have come under fire—particularly in East Texas—for problems involving patient care.

Allen said there are bound to be some nursing homes which fail to provide proper services in all cases, even though the breakdowns may be temporary.

"But," said Allen, "the nursing home care has improved drastically in recent years. Some 25 years ago, before legislation called for regulation of nursing homes in Texas, the situations now being found in isolated cases were much more widespread."

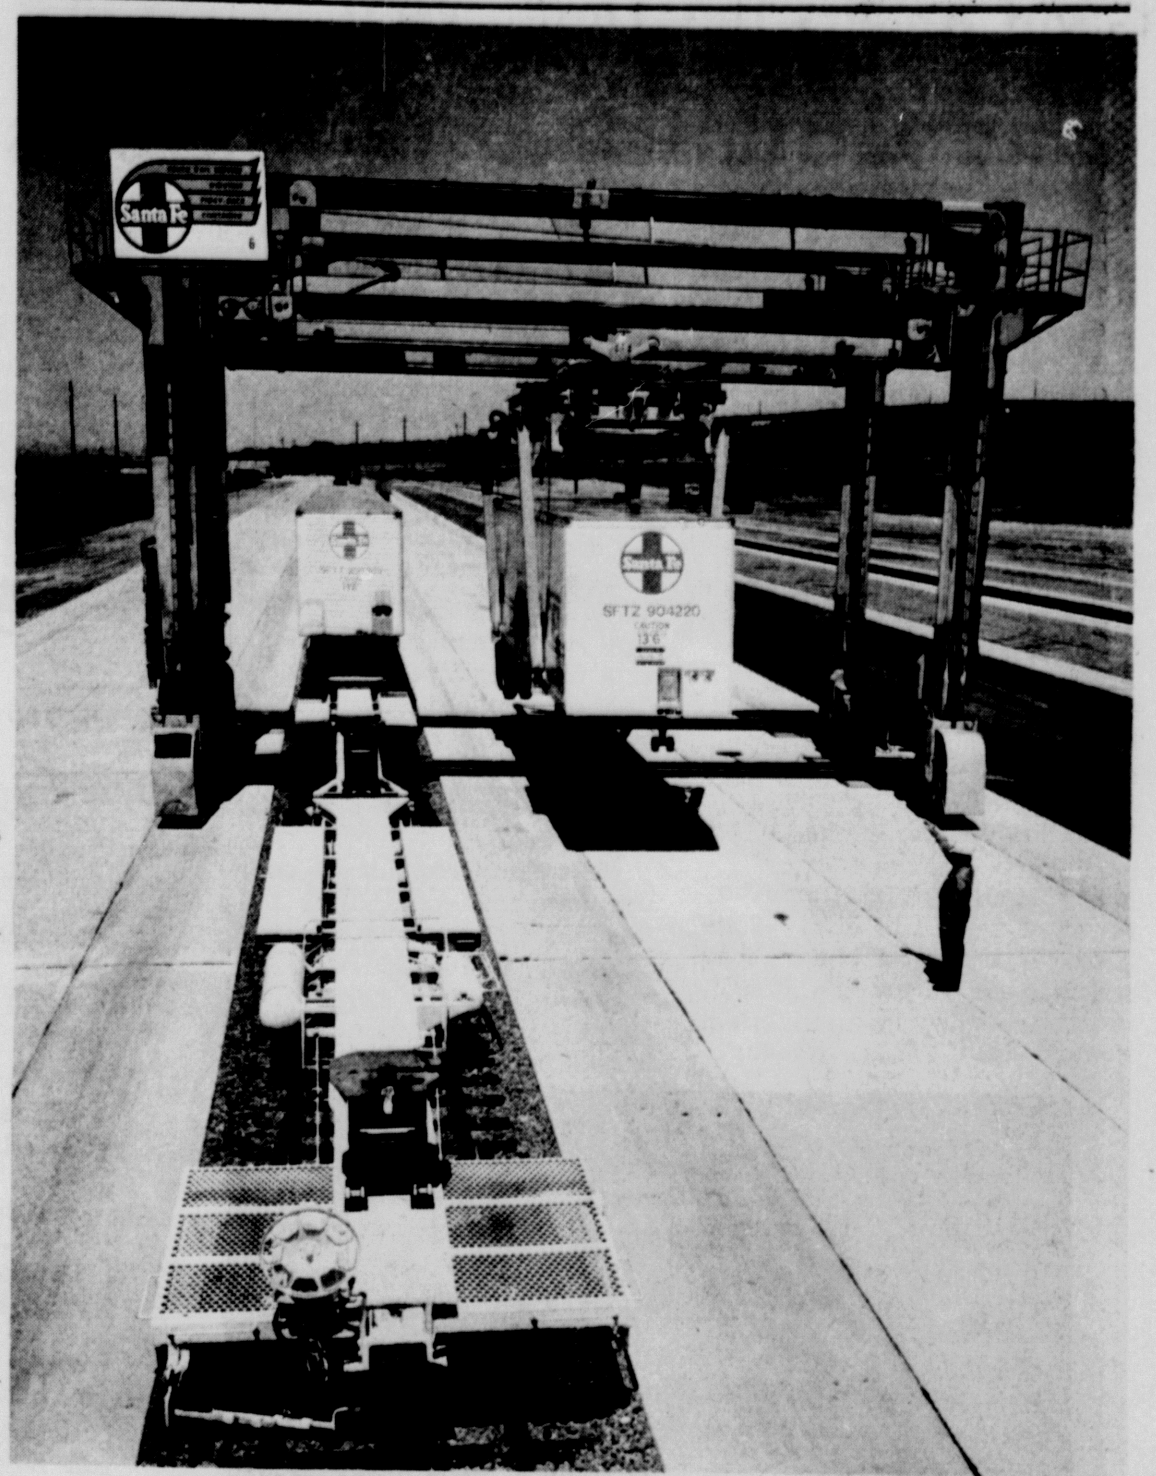

"Back in those days, however," said Allen, "nursing homes were for the most part in private homes or large residential-type structures. Compared to the operation of nursing homes today, the homes of 25 years ago had little physician direction and had much less nursing care provisions, less consideration to diet therapy, and less attention to the handling of medications — services against which complaints are being aired today."

"But since we began licensing and inspecting nursing homes, there has been a dramatic improvement in service and the quality of nursing homes. The general average quality of care increases year by year. Today the nursing home is a sophisticated institution averaging nearly 100 beds in size; in 1953 the average size home was 18 beds."

Allen said there are 1001 nursing and convalescent homes consisting of 98,506 beds licensed and under inspection by the Texas Department of Health.

Inspections and surveys cover such areas as administration, nursing care, dietary care, medical records, pharmacy services, sanitation, and physical environment. Most facilities participate in Medicare or Medicaid or both. The Texas Department of Health performs surveys for certification of facilities under Medicare or Medicaid or both. The Texas Department of Health performs surveys for certification of facilities under Medicare/Medicaid programs, in accordance with state and federal requirements, while at the same time making inspection for licensing.

FUEL SAVINGS PREDICTED — A savings of thousands of gallons of diesel fuel is predicted through use of light-weight skeleton cars developed by Santa Fe Railway for use in piggyback service. Little more than a center sill with a fixed hitch at one end and aprons at the other hold trailer wheels.

Luray Caverns Coins Go To The Cleaners

When the Wishing Well at Luray Caverns, Va., was drained recently, the cave's large entrance "room" was turned into an underground "laundromat." Here, more than two million coins that had been recovered from the well were churned to a mint-like condition in a cement mixer filled with sand and soap.

Later the coins were sorted and bagged before they were moved from the caverns workroom to a Luray bank. During recent years more than $142,158.14 has been recovered from the Well, one of the spectacular Caverns' most scenic spots.

Recently, a grant in the amount of $32,000 was given to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Research Underway To Develop Flavor Standard For Jalapeno

Aficionados of the notorious jalapeno will be comforted to know that Texas Agricultural Experiment Station research is underway in their behalf.

Flavor testers are nibbling, gasping, and sweating, as discreetly as possible, while trying to determine some sort of flavor standard for the gourmet's favorite hot pepper. Clearly, it is service above and beyond the call of duty, and these pepper analysts regard themselves as a cut above the usual run of foodtasting panelists.

Actually, it's all very serious business. The Experiment Station has a major research program underway to boost Texas-grown peppers a notch or two higher in national production and to provide an alternate cash crop for vegetable farmers.

Production of peppers in Texas is limited due to virus disease. Heading that phase is Ben Villalon, Experiment Station virologist at Weslaco's Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center. Virus caused diseases, he says, are among major limiting factors in profitable pepper production worldwide.

There is progress, however; Villalon and his co-workers are not far from releasing several virus-resistant varieties they hope will be the first steps in pushing Texas from its Number 3 ranking in U.S. pepper production to Number 1. California and Florida are first and second at present.

At A&M University, the jalapeno flavor project is directed by Experiment Station food scientist E.E. Burns and his research assistant, Amy Weisenfelder, a master's degree candidate in food science.

Burns says jalapenos are hitting new highs in popularity in snacks and Mexican style dishes. Most are grown in Mexico, which means they can be high priced and scarce. Texas would like to move in on that demand with a varied offering of the peppers — some hot and some mild. The trouble is that the American food industry and the government and food scientists have no uniform concepts for the jalapeno.

So the famed pepper continues to elude. It is Burns and Weisenfelder's goal to establish some kind of flavor standard. And while they are at it, they also want to classify the jalapeno as to heat, size, color, and texture. Their findings will be tabulated and sent to Villalon for possible use in his disease-resistance breeding program.

There are more than 3,000 varieties of tea.

MILAM AREA PARADE OF SPORTS & EVENTS

CAT IN THE BOX — Grey Lady, a kitten owned by Mike Leow of Lampasas, found herself in a real fix, as illustrated by the look of sheer fright on her furry face. She stuck her head in a birdhouse to investigate and was caught. She was discovered by Mike, who came to see what the mewing was about. Finding her hand, er, head in the cookie jar, he called the historically renowned feline rescue agency, the fire department. By demolishing the birdhouse a fireman saved her from a fate worse than death. If it is true that cats have nine lives, Grey Lady better be careful because she must have used at least eight of them in the birdcage episode. Lampasas Record photo.

Good Antlers This Year

Hill Country Deer Flourish

It's a fine year for deer in the Hill Country. Weather conditions have been just right to produce the food for the animals to flourish and to develop good antlers, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

George Litton, wildlife regional director, explained that it used to be thought that spring rains were the dominant factor for healthy deer herds. The situation in the past two years has indicated otherwise.

In the winter of 1975-76, from November until February, a severe dry spell caused deer foods to be at a very low ebb. Conditions improved when ample rains came in March 1976 and were good up until deer season last fall; however, the deer grew poor antlers.

It was widely reported there were few bucks. This was because the antlers on many bucks were barely protruding and many animals did not get harvested because hunters did not recognize them as bucks.

Those same bucks are now, in large parts, the reason for reports of an abundant buck population this year. Not all bucks being seen now are last years fawns, Litton emphasized. Last year's adult bucks that were not harvested now also are carrying large well-formed antlers.

This has come about because weather conditions this past winter in the Edwards Plateau were different from those of the previous one. There was continuously abundant moisture from December 1976 until spring of this year. The range now is beginning to dry, but this is normal. It now is thought that for deer to produce good antlers, winter rainfall is important to provide food for deer at a vital nutritional state.

The AMA Says 'Fishing Is Good Therapy'

Fishing is good therapy--both physical and emotional.

The American Medical Association points out that the millions of Americans who head for the lakes and streams across the nation each fishing season don't need a doctor to tell them that fishing is a good sport. They likely have seen their doctor sitting in the next boat with a line in the water.

Fishing can be elaborate, complete with a trip to the seashore and renting deep sea boats and equipment. Or it can be the cane pole and worms affair on the banks of a neighborhood creek. Either way it gets us out in the fresh air and sunshine, gets our minds off the cares of the day.

Unless you are the vigorous type who wades through racing rapids or rows hard for miles, fishing is only mild exercise, but still is good for the body and spirit. Fishing also is a relatively safe sport. But it does have some built-in hazards. Most of them can be avoided.

The most common fishing accident is catching a barbed hook in the flesh, usually a finger or hands, but sometimes a leg or other part of the body. Lures and hooks left unprotected on a dock or on the bottom of a boat cause many of these accidents.

The wise fisherman against hook accidents by shielding the hook. One simple way is to stick a small cork over the barb. Lures should be stored in the tackle box until needed, and promptly returned to the box when removed from the leader.

Fly or bait casters are responsible for many hook accidents to their fellow fisherman. Train yourself to look before each cast to make certain no one is in the way. This will also save lures from snagging on trees and bushes as you cast.

In removing a hook from the fish, hold the fish firmly under the gills, so that its head can't flop or wiggle. A freshly caught fish is slippery and hard to hold. Get a firm grip before dislodging the hook.

If, despite precautions, a hook become embedded in your hand or finger, don't try to pull it out. Your physician will snip off the shank and push it through, thus causing less further damage to torn flesh. The doctor will also, if necessary, administer antibiotics and tetanus toxoid. Hook wounds often lead to infection unless properly treated.

Mount Everest, the earth's highest peak (29,028 feet) located in the Himalayas, is so high at its summit that it penetrates the jet stream. Winds that sometimes reach 200 mph blow snow from its peak.

Tourist Publication Is Judged Best

"Texas-Land of Contrast," the primary travel publication of the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has again been judged the best tourist guide of all the states.

In an announced "contest," all states, U.S. territories and major tourist cities were sent simulated tourist inquiries by "The Travel Advisor," a travel newsletter based in New York and Washington.

Judging was grouped in two categories: individual publications, and amount of helpful information provided. The 160-page Texas guidebook was judged to be "the most useful and complete," Texas ranked second (behind South Carolina) as the "most helpful U.S. Tourist Office."

Only five of the 54 offices which responded were judged to be excellent. The other runners-up were Colorado, Vermont, and the Virgin Islands.

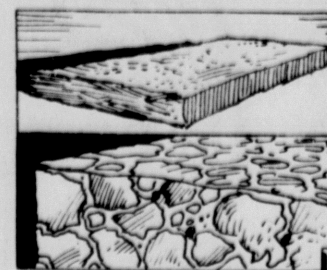

The "Travel Advisor's" request was one among 161-793 inquiries about Texas processed by the Travel and Information Division's Austin office during the first six months of 1977.

This was the second occasion that the state's lavish, full-color guide has been judged best in the nation. When the first edition appeared back in 1971, it was accorded that year's Discover America Award as the foremost travel publication among all U.S. states and territories.

More than 1,100 types of nails are manufactured.

NEW MATH FOR HOMEOWNERS—Six inches of blanket insulation has the same ability to resist the flow of heat as 7-foot-thick brick wall or 15 inches of wood.

"R" Values, Not Inches, Important When Insulating

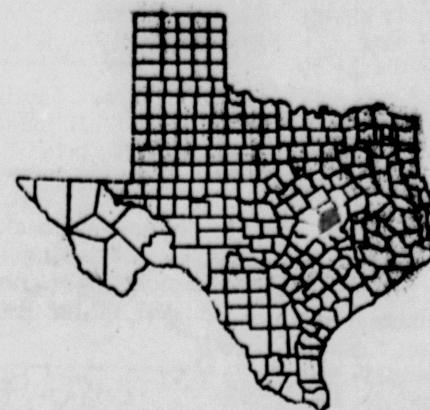

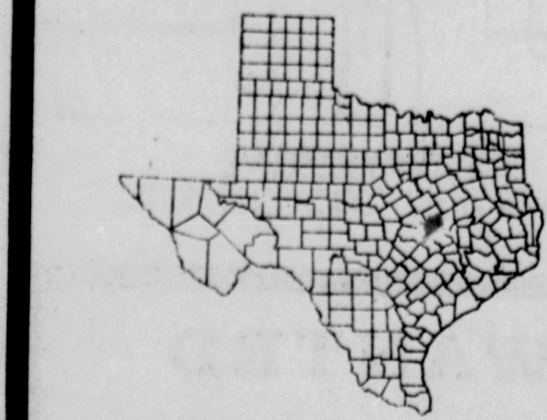

When it comes to buying home insulation, it's "R-values"—not inches—that count. R-value stands for "resistance value," a term used to measure a material's ability to resist the passage of heat into or out of a house. Are all insulating materials created equal? No. For example, a six-inch-thick (R-19) blanket of Fiberglas from Owens-Corning will have the same R-value as a 7-foot-thick brick wall or 15 inches of wood! The higher an insulating material's R-value, the greater that material's ability to resist the flow of heat through walls and ceilings—heat loss in the winter and heat gain in the summer. In most cases, manufacturers of blanket type insulation have marked the R-value of their products on the package. To find the R-value you need for the area you're insulating, check with your Fiberglas insulation contractor or building materials dealer.

Tourist Publication Is Judged Best

"Texas-Land of Contrast," the primary travel publication of the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has again been judged the best tourist guide of all the states.

In an announced "contest," all states, U.S. territories and major tourist cities were sent simulated tourist inquiries by "The Travel Advisor," a travel newsletter based in New York and Washington.

Judging was grouped in two categories: individual publications, and amount of helpful information provided. The 160-page Texas guidebook was judged to be "the most useful and complete," Texas ranked second (behind South Carolina) as the "most helpful U.S. Tourist Office."

Only five of the 54 offices which responded were judged to be excellent. The other runners-up were Colorado, Vermont, and the Virgin Islands.

The "Travel Advisor's" request was one among 161-793 inquiries about Texas processed by the Travel and Information Division's Austin office during the first six months of 1977.

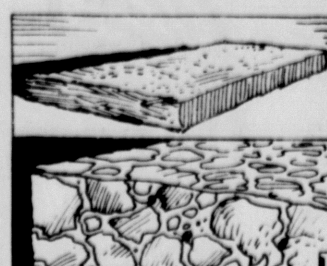

This was the second occasion that the state's lavish, full-color guide has been judged best in the nation. When the first edition appeared back in 1971, it was accorded that year's Discover America Award as the foremost travel publication among all U.S. states and territories.

More than 1,100 types of nails are manufactured.

"R" Values, Not Inches, Important When Insulating

NEW MATH FOR HOMEOWNERS—Six inches of blanket insulation has the same ability to resist the flow of heat as 7-foot-thick brick wall or 15 inches of wood.

When it comes to buying home insulation, it's "R-values"—not inches—that count. R-value stands for "resistance value," a term used to measure a material's ability to resist the passage of heat into or out of a house. Are all insulating materials created equal? No. For example, a six-inch-thick (R-19) blanket of Fiberglas from Owens-Corning will have the same R-value as a 7-foot-thick brick wall or 15 inches of wood! The higher an insulating material's R-value, the greater that material's ability to resist the flow of heat through walls and ceilings—heat loss in the winter and heat gain in the summer. In most cases, manufacturers of blanket type insulation have marked the R-value of their products on the package. To find the R-value you need for the area you're insulating, check with your Fiberglas insulation contractor or building materials dealer.
